"I'm more scared of an influenza than of cancer."
-- Dr. E. Monsorno after introducing the beam in 1991

How efficient are our cells?

It has been estimated that some 10,000 biochemical reactions per second occur in each cell. Every human being is made of billions of such renewable cells. They underlie:

- Our relative free will
- Our intellect
- Our emotions
- Our nutrition
- The environmental influences to which we expose them
- Even the entertainment to which we subject them

Entertainment?

Here's the proof:

Just think on what you have learned about the Mystica or the Candid Hope projects and do a kinesiologic test. Your muscles will gain strength right away. Then think on an offensive show and see how your muscles will weaken (maybe worse than thinking on a bitchy mother-in-law). Matter of fact, in Mystica episode #17 there is an amusing demo of a kinesiologic test.

Bottom line:

If you can, try to forget who has done you wrong, lied to you, treated you shabbily or patronizingly because in the long run this will affect you. If you don't explode you'll "implode" with some disease.

Are your "gates"
opening up?

Ready to unlock your "door"?

Willing to let the beam shine into your "house"?

Past your mind,
to "dialogue" with your cells?

The four-dimensional vibes of Barbara Harrington have already done it when you watched her clips. Rare stars like Carol Burnett, Sandra Bullock or Emma Watson are four-dimensional. Audiences cannot but love them.

What's going on?

What has a beam of light to do with an idea? -- Communication.

What has four-dimensionality to do with filmmaking? -- Great Communication.

What has a four-dimensional actress with a million dollar smile to do with billions of cells? -- Heart to heart dialogue at it's purest, i.e. Super Communication.

Super Communication?

Whether we are aware of it or not, our Higher Selves are beaming through time and space, long before our intellect, our emotions, or our energy and physical bodies form. We are like a concept projected into space, leaving a trail of light behind caused by the friction the concept encounters on its way. And don't forget, light is already matter. Far behind the light, denser realities form, including our lives. They take longer to form because matter is "handicapped spirit." There it is, where our lack in communication with our Higher Selves is most dramatic. Because most of us know nothing about our everlasting essence.

Conversely, the more we are exposed to circumstances which force us to catch up with our Higher Selves, the more the whole picture reveals itself. Some of us will be drawn to overlooked issues at the root of problems, and solve them in the fashion of who in common parlance is called a genius. Supernatural phenomena such as miracles will become plausible, even obvious. The whole creation will begin to appear like a gigantic workshop in which to dwell until its barriers fade to an even more fantastic reality.

Thus, before our lives open up to our intellect's awareness, and manifest in our physical bodies, they unfold in our spirit. There is not much we can do about other than to witness the communication with our Higher Self to the degree we are individually capable, shift our vision to our soul's wisdom, and live as soul within the "Grand Design's" context.

If you struggle about four-dimensional individuals, rejoice. Researchers in Mystica episode #14 deal with the issue amidst dramatic circumstances and soulless politicians...

"Grand Design's" Context?

Once we realize that most of the space occupied by an atom is empty, and that this void which interpenetrates a tiny unit such as an atom makes out the distance from atom to atom, throughout the universe, we realize where space and time fade as we access a dimension within and beyond both. Quantum Mechanics will lead us through the portal into the fourth dimension.

Ever heard of the EPR Paradox?

Like Einstein, Podolski, Rosen, and researchers before and after them, a filmmaker realized how communication via a so-called testimony is possible over thousands of miles on a cellular level. Not only can forming conditions be detected in advance, they can be treated over distance, without the physical presence of a patient. In fact, the concept of patient does not apply when the individual is sufficiently receptive to absorb the therapist's intention. For Super Communication to take place not attraction but the absence of obstacles, especially mind created barriers, does it.

Candid Hope and Mystica
tell it all, and so much more entertainingly!

So, Placebos Galore?

Intrigued by the EPR Paradox, tachyon energy, or Orgon, Karl Kaufmann figured out how to transmit those energies through a light beam. He then gave the beam to Dr. Monsorno, one of those physicians who tried out everything, from snake venom to laser acupuncture. The physician soon achieved remarkable results with no side effects, and his patients confirmed the results on camera.

The next idea in the mind of a bold filmmaker was to beam into every household through their TV screens.

Yeah, and lower medical expenses...

How about a little preventive measure to strengthen the audience's immune system while they watch the news hour? After all, there cannot be a profoundly upbeat scripted series by Karl Kaufmann on air all the time .

What followed the experiments smacked of fairy tale. Carried out in the low key fashion of who has no money (yet serious supporters) nor desire for fame other than in filmmaking, the experiments led to results beyond any expectation. The most intriguing case was a lady who stopped the filmmaker in a store, claiming she had seen him on TV. Even though he was in front of no camera, the time she indicated matched with his TV beam energy transmission . . .

May our Higher Selves beam through time and space to trigger our spiritual awakening. Diseases, ignorance, narrow-mindedness, greed, so it is said, are unknown in our Higher Selves' true Homeland.
